BRITISH WILDCATS

The British government's heavy-handed decision to discourage "runaway" strikes—equivalent to five years' imprisonment and a $2,000 fine over persons agitating work stoppages without union sanction holds slight promise for the solution of the same problem in this country.

Any proposal to back up union authority with a similar threat of punishment here would run into the opposition of those who refuse to believe that unions are entitled to so great a degree of government backing. But in Britain, since British labor is pledged to a no-strike policy, meaning there can be no strikes without violating union labor's word, the government's backing is not so much of union authority as of the general principle that no essential work should be stopped because of labor disputes in wartime. Thus, it is not illegal to discuss strikes in official union meetings, but only illegal to agitate them under any other circumstances—but meanwhile the unions, themselves, cannot sanction strikes without breaking their word. Naturally, the effect of the regulation will be watched closely, but unless unauthorized strikes cease—unless all work stoppages cease—it will turn out to be just one more attempt to do by edict what probably can be done only by the universal intention of union members to forego work stoppages during wartime.

In Britain and the United States, war production has not been attained by government regulations, but by the propounding desire of the war producers to do their jobs to the best of their ability. The undisciplined minorities which make trouble find no more sympathy among loyal unionists than they find among those who have been too prone to hold unions responsible for the shortcomings of a few of their members.

RATIONING BY HINDSIGHT

Typewriter rationing is slacking off on dealers' stocks, another occasion to look at rationing by hindsight. There were many who suffered grievously by not being able to buy typewriters at will. Many will continue to suffer because manufacturers' stocks are still controlled, but who can claim that the hardship is not more imaginary than real?

This doubt of the real effect of rationing is destined to be common as more restrictions are relaxed. The composite effect on the public when all is said and done will turn out to be more imaginary than real. Indeed, hindsight may disclose that the necessity of doing without had a salutary effect.

The adjustment to unaccustomed scarcity has been made with far less disturbance than was expected. Coffee drinkers survived their dread experience without mishap. The butter eaters seem none the worse for a little less. Even gasoline consumers, who suffer the loudest, are not without brief intervals of realization that their lot is not so bad as they say it is. This is still a resourceful country. It is assuring to be reminded that one of its resources is ability to survive, even to thrive, on what passes here for an economy of scarcity but would be, in any other nation, still an economy of abundance.

READY FOR INVASION

The myriads of American and Allied troops who are to invade Europe from England, we are assured here at home, are ready.

We know from the communiqués describing Allied operations in the air that the aviation arm is ready—indeed is striking with force which amounts to aerial invasion of Europe in advance of the gigantic amphibious operation which will open a western front on the continent.

The navy is ready. The thousands of specialists who back up the fighting branches, the services of supply, the intricate communications systems, the complex organization of the general staff and the vitally affected areas of England—all these are ready.

The Germans have been at great pains to assure themselves and the Allies that they are ready, too. They say the great event is now imminent, a matter of weeks at the most, only days at the least. Barely in history has the setting for an historic event been created so deliberately, with so much knowledge of transpiring events.

But it is evident, nevertheless, that no one can know whether he is ready for the climax until it occurs. That is the issue of the battle—whether the Allies are better prepared to invade Europe than the Germans are to resist invasion. Both sides are confident, but one side must be wrong. The outcome may hang in the balance a long time before it emerges as an event in history. The morale of the nations affected will be given its severest test during the period of suspense.

Here in this country—and even more so in England, which lies in the battle area—preparedness for invasion demands complete faith in the skill and courage of the fighting forces. It demands an intensification of effort in every detail of the tremendous effort of total war, not just physical effort but the mental effort which furnishes needed stimulus for every great endeavor. We must find within ourselves the counterpart of the surpassing courage which enabled the Russians to turn back the enemy at Stalingrad. The victory that fighting men hope to gain on the beaches and, later, in the land offensive to liberate the occupied countries must become the victory of their countrymen, wherever they are doing their small and great parts in the war effort. For every German civilian standing behind Hitler's fighting forces there must be an American and a British civilian doing just a little better.

When we have done that, each according to his best ability, we will have earned the success we hope to achieve.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, April 23

SUNDAY'S horoscope gives high impetus to gay and festive functions of a domestic, social and romantic flavor, with the possibility of overspending lavishly and dangerously in this extravaganza. It is a day for youth and youthful pastimes, and these might profit and find happiness with a little supervision as over-indulgence and excess might be carried to regrettable situations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a lively and happy year, with celebrations and social, domestic or affectional affairs carried to overindulgence or excess. Some supervision is recommended. In a serious way it is a favorable time for making new contracts.

A child born on this day should be versatile, clever in music, poetry and other creative art. It may be improvident and pleasure-loving.

For Monday, April 24

Monday's astrological forecast is for a productive day, with contacts with diplomatic or political or fraternal groups, where subtlety and intrigue are employed. Well organized strategies will prove more lucrative than straightforward and direct methods. Social and home matters may be busy in celebrations of romantic affairs. Some menace of deception and undercover transactions is noted.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a successful and happy year by guarding against subtlety and deception, arising from peculiar sources. With the use of strategy and vigilance against misconstruction and treachery, there may be thriving business conditions and much social or romantic pleasure.

A child born on this day will have creative ability in many lines. It may be fond of pleasure.

INTERCHANGE OF NEWS

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The American Society of Newspaper Editors today applauded their President's plea for free interchange of international news in the post-war world, then turned their attention to a discussion of union membership among news reporters and writers.

"Maintenance of peace in the world depends as much on the free interchange of international news as much as on any one factor," said President Roy Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star, in an address opening the convention.

"I would like to see the society take the lead toward such a goal in the post-war period."

The unionism question was discussed by Nathaniel R. Howard of the Cleveland News. He asserted one of the most dangerous and at the same time most indefinable threats to the impartiality of the press is posed by the problem of whether membership in a labor organization colors a reporter's judgment.

Declaring it is extremely difficult to supply evidence of such bias and that no clear cut case has yet appeared, Howard said:

"I'm very much afraid that when an instance of this coloration does appear to the extent that it can be recognized as legal evidence it will be a sign, not that the freedom of the press is in danger, but that it has been abridged. The danger then will be past. The fact will have been accomplished."

It is utterly ridiculous at this stage of the war to have married men telling their families goodbye, giving up their jobs and selling their businesses, only to be told the next day it was all a mistake and that they will not be needed.—Sen. Taft of Ohio.

U. S. LEADERS AT INTERNATIONAL LABOR CONFERENCE

Research For Penicillin

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE VERY LATEST reports on the action of penicillin are at hand, and are very encouraging. They represent and bring to mind a factor that the public often forgets in the development of a drug in modern times.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Behind that simple looking little tablet you get at the drug store lies a vast stretch of carefully conducted experiments, with the work of patient laboratory workers, chemists and pharmacologists, and physicians at the bedside making carefully controlled observations, during long days and long nights of back-breaking labor.

Your light and careless questions—"What is it good for?" and "How many shall I take?" and "How often?" and "Before or after meals?"—are answered by the druggist with facile ease and you get to thinking the druggist is a very wise man and so he is, but his answers are the compressed and formulated results of all that research.

Old Time Methods

It was not always so. The old herb woman found a herb in the woods and she cured a fever with it, and became convinced that it was good for fever and called it "feverwort." And she went on her whole life crushing up the whole plant and giving it to fever patients and handing down the wisdom to the third and fourth generation. There may have been a germ of truth in her dictum, but think of the waste involved in her ministrations. Many, many people with fever did not improve on her treatment, but she never stopped to figure out the percentages or to separate the kinds of fever so that she knew in which kind the "feverwort" was really calculated to do some good.

She never stopped to investigate which part of the plant—leaves, roots, flower, stem—contained the active ingredient. In the course of time the pharmacists did that for some plants—aconite and digitalis preparations use the leaf of the plant, belladonna the root, and arnica the flower. And the old herb woman never had any idea of whether the isolated specimen she was using was active or not, or how active.

Note the difference in modern procedure. When it was found that the mold penicillin was beneficial for certain fevers or infections, many people were impatient because they could not obtain it at once. But think of what had to be done to conform to modern scientific requirements.

Experimentation With Penicillin

Laboratory workers had to find exactly which kind of the many penicillin molds is the most active; then the dosage; then whether it was best absorbed by mouth, hypodermically or in the vein; then whether it was toxic or poisonous and in what dosage; then, if possible, what its chemical composition is and whether an active principle can be synthesized in the chemical laboratory. And this is the final stage, exactly what kinds of patients (age, etc.) and what kinds of diseases it could be expected to benefit.

The reports on this last stage are just coming in. The "Journal of the American Medical Association" devotes almost its entire issue of March 4th to the subject. In summary it may be said that penicillin gives a satisfactory results in 85 per cent of pus infections due to staphylococcus (in which the sulfa drugs have not been too helpful), in 80 per cent of pneumonia infections, in some streptococcal infections (in which apparently the sulfa drugs are better) and in 100 per cent of gonococcal infections.

Broken down into clinical types research has shown that penicillin gives satisfactory results in boils, carbuncles, wound infections, lobar pneumonia, most venereal infections, bone infections (osteomyelitis), ear infections, meningitis and abscesses of many kinds. It is not so satisfactory in blood stream infections, chronic bronchitis, kidney infections and tuberculosis.

The medical profession again, as it has a thousand times before, in regard to new drugs, must warn the public that penicillin is not a cure-all.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. M.—From a newspaper column: "Saw a fellow swallow two aspirin tablets before he started his lunch. That's bad. Aspirins should be taken after eating. All right, ask your doctor." Can you explain?

Answer: A valuable question. The principles on whether drug should be taken before or after eating are: If you want them absorbed for systematic effect, take them before eating so they will be absorbed rapidly from the empty stomach, and not diluted or neutralized by the food. If they are to soothe the stomach or aid digestion, take them after eating. The first class includes all pain killers, fever reducers—including aspirin, sleeping medicine, etc. Also cathartics. And all these should be taken not only before eating, but a half hour before so time is allowed for full absorption. The second class includes soda, bismuth and pepsin. Your newspaper columnist has reached a new high for lay advice; he is dogmatic, does not explain, and is a million per cent wrong.

L. M. P.: My daughter, aged 19, underwent various health tests, including a tuberculin test which came out "slightly positive." Is that bad?

Answer: It probably means little by itself at the age of 19. At younger ages it would mean more. But it calls for a follow-up X-ray examination.

A. H.—What are swollen glands in the neck and what would cause them to stay swollen for seven weeks?

Answer: The lymph nodes of the neck swell with any infection of the head—from lice to tonsils, adenoids, running ear or bad teeth. Seven weeks is not necessarily a long time for them to be swollen. Remove the cause.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

THRIFT Helped Franklin . . . .
Let It Help You

Benjamin Franklin was the first great American to write homely bits of wisdom which he followed faithfully throughout his life, and which are still alive today. Thrift was his watchword. He realized the importance in the training of children and in the everyday life of his fellowmen. Through his wisdom, Franklin progressed from a humble itinerant printer to become the only signer of the four most important documents in the early history of our country. The days in which we are living are almost as critical as those of Franklin's time. Today, as then, foresight is synonymous with wisdom. Follow the example of this great man.

CHAPTER FORTY

Duffy told Detective Duffy: "The who killed McKibben never time on. He stole them at the time he stole McKibben's suit- while he was doing the job he his own gloves, and dipped these in McKibben's blood he had killed him."

"I'm waiting for Rhino," she explained happily. "He promised to come right up from the office. And of course I'm looking well. Why shouldn't I? I get to bed at night. I've settled down. I really have," she went on, seeing his smile. "So has Rhino. We had a long talk, and we both agreed it was silly to run all around town looking for what we've got right at home."

"There's something in that," Tony agreed.

"Of course it's not as exciting," Lily rattled on, "but my psychiatrist advises it."

"Is Rhino also taking psychic treatments?"

"Rhino doesn't need any treatments. He never did want to run around. It was only because I turned him down. Now you're laughing again."

"No, I'm not, Lily," Tony assured her. "I hope it works out. I really do. Only I think it would be safer if Rhino had a few treatments. Who's the psychiatrist?"

"Dr. Gonzalo—Cesare Gonzalo. And what he doesn't know about women! It's a treat just to talk to him."

"I'll bet it is—I only wish I could listen in. Did you ever go to Jerome Metcalf?"

"The one who shot himself? Yes, I went to him a few times. But he didn't take me seriously. I've been to others, too, but Gonzalo is the McCoy."

"Do they all have broad couches and blue lights?"

"Of course, and they sit behind you and put their hands on your head, and encourage you to tell all. You don't know how soothing it is just to lie down on your back and relax and let yourself go and get rid of all the inhibitions. Mine are about all gone already."

"So I see," laughed Tony. "Well, why not, if it makes you happier?"

"Oh, it does — and wiser, too. When I think what a fool I was about Jack McKibben!"

"Did he ever give you a key to his apartment, Lily?"

"A key to his apartment? I should say not. He even kept his bedroom locked. By the way, Tony, who really did kill him?"

"The police say Metcalf did."

"I know, but that's too silly for words. Metcalf wasn't the sort to kill anybody, not even himself. Why, he talked to me for an hour once about the sacredness of life."

"That's interesting," said Tony. "How did Metcalf get to talking on that theme?"

"I've been telling him about my accident," Lily explained. "You know what I mean—and he certainly gave me what-for. That's one reason I didn't go back. Just the same he didn't kill Jack McKibben. I've always thought that slyster, Herschel Schneider, was mixed up in it some way."

"What made you think that of Herschel Schneider? He didn't have anything to do with your accident, did he?"

"Of course not. But don't you called. "I know I'm not news any more, but you can spare me one minute, can't you?"

"Sure," grinned Tony, and dropped into the chair opposite her. "You're looking tops, but drinking alone—that's a dreadful habit."

"I'm waiting for Rhino," she explained happily. "He promised to come right up from the office. And of course I'm looking well. Why shouldn't I? I get to bed at night. I've settled down. I really have," she went on, seeing his smile. "So has Rhino. We had a long talk, and we both agreed it was silly to run all around town looking for what we've got right at home."

"A key to his apartment? I should say not. He even kept his bedroom locked. By the way, Tony, who really did kill him?"

"The police say Metcalf did."

"I know, but that's too silly for words. Metcalf wasn't the sort to kill anybody, not even himself. Why, he talked to me for an hour once about the sacredness of life."

"That's interesting," said Tony. "How did Metcalf get to talking on that theme?"

"I've been telling him about my accident," Lily explained. "You know what I mean—and he certainly gave me what-for. That's one reason I didn't go back. Just the same he didn't kill Jack McKibben. I've always thought that slyster, Herschel Schneider, was mixed up in it some way."

"What made you think that of Herschel Schneider? He didn't have anything to do with your accident, did he?"

"Of course not. But don't you remember I told you that he stopped at our table at Max's that night and told Mack he wanted to see him?"

"Yes, I remember. And you said McKibben said, 'Not tonight, Josephine,' and Schneider went away."

"Mack said more than that. He acted real ugly and went on about how he never did any work after office hours except chasing women. I could see Schneider wasn't a bit pleased, but he saw Mack was drunk and went away. And I said, 'Mack, you oughtn't to talk to Schneider like that—he can make trouble for you.' And Mack said, 'Make trouble for me? If anybody makes trouble, it will be me. Why, I could blow him clear over the Empire State building, if I wanted to,' and then when I started to ask him how he figured he could do that, he told me to shut up."

"Did Miss Terry hear all this?"

"Miss Terry—who, oh, that Leda girl? Sure, she was sitting right there, looking scared to death."

"That wasn't what scared her. She was afraid her brother was going to kill McKibben."

"Yes, I read about it. Quite a lot of folks seem to have had it in for Mack. Well, one stockbroker more or less—what does that matter in this man's town?" Then she looked up and her face brightened. "Oh, here comes Rhino!" she cried. "Here I am, darling!"

"Hello, baby," said Rhino, and patted Lily affectionately on the cheek. "Sorry I'm late, but the traffic was terrible. Hello, Tony. Glad you've been entertaining Lily. Have a drink?"

"Thank you, Rhino," said Tony, "but I've got to be moving on. Good luck to both of you!" and he made his way out of the bar, marveling at the strange things which could happen to the human spirit. Lily and Rhino in love! If it lasted no more than a week, it would still be a miracle.

That night, about 9 p. m., Tony called a taxi, and told the driver to take him to the Newark airport. He had decided that the plane leaving at 10:30 and reaching Washington at 12:05 must have been the one that Schneider had taken, if he had taken any at all. He had Schneider's picture in his pocket.

At the airport, the columnist made straight for the office, gave his card to the man at the information desk, and asked to see the transportation agent. He was shown in at once.

"Sit down, Mr. Bigelow," the latter said. "My name is Foster. What can I do for you?"

"My inquiry is a little unusual," said Tony, "but I assure you that it is not motivated by curiosity. Were you here Thursday night—night before last—when the 10:30 plane took off?"

"Yes."

"Did you see the passengers?"

"Yes. It's my duty to place them aboard the plane, and I always look them over."

"You have a list of them, I suppose?"

"Certainly. The dispatch sheet tells all about them—even how much they weigh."

"Would you let me look at Thursday night's list?"

"Certainly. There's nothing secret about it."

Learn something about your War Bonds from this fellow!

THE BEST THING a bulldog does is HANG ON! Once he gets hold of something, it's mighty hard to make him let go!

And that's the lesson about War Bonds you can learn from him. Once you get hold of a War Bond, HANG ON TO IT for the full ten years of its life.

There are at least two very good reasons why you should do this. One is a patriotic reason . . . the other a personal reason.

You buy War Bonds because you know Uncle Sam needs money to fight this war. And you want to put some of your money into the fight. But . . . if you don't hang on to those War Bonds, your money isn't going to stay in the battle.

Another reason you buy War Bonds is because you want to set aside some money for your family's future and yours. No one knows just what's going to happen after the War. But the man with a fistful of War Bonds knows he'll have a roof over his head and 3 square meals a day no matter what happens!

War Bonds pay you back $4 for every $3 in 10 years. But, if you don't hang on to your Bonds for the full ten years, you don't get the full face value, and . . . you won't have that money coming in later on when you may need it a lot worse than you need it today.

So buy War Bonds . . . more and more War Bonds. And then keep them. You will find that War Bonds are very good things to have . . . and to hold!

Quaker Track Team Wins Dual Meet At Louisville, 78-40

Cope Pleased With Showing As His Charges Capture Ten Firsts; Dunlap High Scorer

Grabbing 10 first places in 14 events, Coach Fred Cope's 1944 Salem High track team got off to an encouraging start by downing Louisville 78-40 in a dual meet at Louisville Friday that saw Charles Dunlap, dusky letterman, capture four firsts for a total of 20 points.

Cope was pleased with the first showing of his charges and is expecting an improvement in the squad as the season progresses. He was especially high in praise of Dunlap, Flick Entrikey, who picked up 10.4 points in his three events, and Ed Ferko, veteran who topped firsts in the 440 and 880-yard events for 10 points.

Dunlap Sets Pace

Dunlap took first in the 100-yard dash, the high jump, the 220-yard dash and the broad jump. In all four events he set a stiff pace for his competitors, chalking up 10.7 seconds in the 100, high-jumping 5 ft. 6 in., doing the 220 in 25 seconds and broad-jumping 20 ft. 1 1/2 in.

Other Quaker firsts came in the

MARSHALL SNARES LAMOTTA'S CROWN

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, April 22.—Lloyd Marshall, who has disposed of all the active opponents in the light heavyweight division, today held a verdict over Jake LaMotta, current ruler of the middleweights.

The Cleveland-California Negro fought Jake on his own terms—at a weight of not more than 161 pounds—and smashed out a clean-cut decision in a 10-rounder at the Arena last night.

The Bronx brawler usually wades in with both gloves flying, but he was cautious of the Marshall mitts last night and didn't come out of his shell until the final two rounds. Lloyd showed the effects of paring his weight at this juncture but LaMotta had dropped the previous eight heats and needed a knockout to extend his winning streak to 10 bouts.

LaMotta fought only in spurts in the early rounds, while Marshall consistently connected with hard rights that opened gashes around his opponent's eyes.

After the fight Jake claimed he had injured a knuckle on his left hand in an early round, but he favored neither mitt in the final two stanzas as he launched an all-out attack against the tiring Marshall. Some of the 7,800 paying customers thought Jake's closing rush had given him the edge, but Referee Jackie Davis and both judges balked for Marshall.

LaMotta came in at 158½ while Marshall scaled 160½. The gross gate was $36,608.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., April 22.—Eddie Marcus, 138, Los Angeles, won a decision from Ace Miller, 139, Columbus, O., in a 10-round main event fight last night.

Scores Over Rabaul

WASHINGTON (AP)—Marine Lt. Wayne C. Gher, former U. of Illinois back, was over Rabaul with a bulky engine but that didn't stop him from accounting for a Jap Zero.

ADAMS, KREEVICH ALREADY CAN SEE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Ace Equals Last Season Record (1); Kreevich Doubles Hits (2)

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

Ace Adams of the New York Giants and Mike Kreevich of the St. Louis Browns, the two early pace-setting clubs, can mark up 1944 as a successful season in their personal record books right now before the first week of the schedule has been completed.

The ace has pitched and won as many complete games as he did all last season. Total one. Kreevich has hit twice as many home runs as he did in the last three campaigns. Total two.

Adams took the hill yesterday to spoil Brooklyn's home opening as the Giants made it four straight wins by a 3-2 margin.

Kreevich broke into the Browns lineup only because Jimmy Dykes was using Thornton Lee, a left-hander, against them but he bashed two circuit clouts while St. Louis was thumping Chicago, 5-3, for its fourth in a row.

Tribe Drubs Tigers

Pat Seery, who is trying to make a job for himself in Cleveland's outfield, helped himself along with a three-run homer as the Tribe walloped Detroit, 7-4. The paid attendance at Cleveland's home opener was 13,643, best of the second-innings which totalled 43,683 in five cities.

Washington at New York, and Boston at Philadelphia were washed out in the American as was the Phillies at Boston tilt in the National.

Billy Southworth has been getting the kind of pitching that goes with Champs, two shutouts in three games, the latest being Lefty Harry Brecheen's 4-0 job against Chicago yesterday.

Brecheen and Paul Derringer went down the line in a 0-0 game for seven frames until Slaty Marion hoisted a homer in the Card eighth. After Derringer was removed for a pinch hitter, the Birds hopped on Johnny Burrows and Paul Erickson for three more in the ninth.

Joe Beggs goes into the army as a lieutenant, j.g., next Thursday but he's making good use of his spare time pitching for Cincinnati, as in yesterday's 4-2 triumph over Pittsburgh's Rip Sewell, a 21-game winner last year.

Training Given Future Servicemen In High Schools Good, Coach Says

BY FRANK ECK

NEW YORK—Carroll (Red) Smith, former star center for Southwestern college, Winfield, Kas., says the part high school coaches are playing today is helping us win the war.

"Most of the men in service at some time during their athletic career were under high school coaches," says Red who has been coaching for the past 18 years and at present is director of athletics at Garden City High School. "Their high school training has had much to do with their success in the armed forces."

Besides an athletic program to meet the wants of some 600 boys, Red has a commando course at his Long Island school and the 16- and 17-year-olds really go for it.

"Our commando course is built along the lines of the Chapel Hill, N. C., Naval pre-flight school course," says Smith, "and the kids feel pretty good to know they are going through the same preliminary training as men already in the service."

"We go in for heavy apparatus work, like tumbling, rope climbing and hand-to-hand combat. Last year 60 boys from six schools took part in the Nassau County commando championship over our course."

"Why many of our boys today are ready six months before they are called. They seem to realize their fathers didn't have the same opportunities in the last war."

"But give the teachers some credit. Despite the shortage of athletic instructors, those still in the schools are paying strict attention to the youngsters."

Smith has a compulsory after school athletic program at Garden City. Almost every sport has a place for the average youth for Red divides his teams into three groups—varsity, junior varsity and freshmen.

"Last fall," says Red, "we had football, soccer—a sport boosted by Navy pre-flight men—and cross-country, recommended highly by both the Army and Navy."

During the past winter Garden City was represented in basketball, wrestling and rifle and for the first time there was intramural boxing.

Taking shape right now is a hectic spring program that includes baseball, track, tennis, golf and lacrosse.

Among the athletes turned out by Garden City are Paul Mathy, former track star who was killed in action in Italy; Bob Brauns, a three-star athlete now in the Army air forces who holds the distinguished flying cross, and Bjil Aldworth, Minnesota tackle last fall.

Adams, Giants—Graduated to ranks of starting pitcher after setting relief man record in 1943, turned back Dodgers with seven scattered hits.

Harry Brecheen, Cardinals—Out-pitched Paul Derringer to win neat duel by blanking Chicago with three singles and one double.

Joe Beggs, Reds—Scattered eight Pittsburgh safeties in outpointing Rip Sewell.

Texas Seen As Repeater In Southwest Football Circles

AP Features

AUSTIN, Tex.—Don't shed any tears for Texas just yet; the Longhorns look good enough to repeat as Southwest conference football champions, thanks to the Navy and to the Marines.

Coach D. X. Bible says that he'd like starting next fall's campaign with exactly the group that closed out spring training recently. But chances are he won't have to.

Returning to Memorial stadium next season will be a couple of men who helped Bible to his first Southwest conference title at Texas in 1942—Guard Harold Fischer and Center Jack Sachse.

Fischer and Sachse were at Southwestern university in the marine training program last fall but they're slated to be back with the Orange Wave when the first whistle blows.

There also are Ralph Ellsworth, all-conference halfback now with the track squad; Meredith Roberts, former freshman star; Sandy Crow, 1943 wingman, and Bobby Layne, sensational Dallas freshman who is pitching varsity baseball.

Ellsworth got an appointment to the U. S. Naval academy but may not accept. And if he doesn't the starting Texas backfield next fall looks like Ellsworth, Layne, Roberts and Fischer.

Spring training developed satisfactory guards and tackles and center play was pretty good. There were several backfield "finds," including Bruce Scott and Al Martin, basketball lettermen from California, who is a naval trainee. Two reserve fullbacks, Jerry Owens and Paul Perez, will be back. Perez is a V-12 and Owens is under draft age. Scott may be lost to the service.

Most heavily bolstered position is tackle, with big Harlan Wetz and Jimmy Plyler of the 1943 team leading the way, while Phil Bolin and Jim Kishi, lettermen, are prospective guards.

Keifer Marshall, regular center, probably will be lost to the service. But there are several former high school stars on hand to take care of this job.

Belgium, with a population of 8,500,000 and an area of 11,755 square miles, is one of the most densely populated and highly industrialized countries in the world.

New U. S. Fighter Plane Range Widens Threat of Invasion

AP Features
LONDON — Despite a greatly increased range of invasion due to the development of new long range American fighter planes, the Allies have virtually no hope of achieving a complete strategic surprise in opening the Western Front.

There is no chance to achieve such a military advantage as was obtained in North Africa when the Germans were caught flat footed.

Two years ago North Africa, Norway, France, the Balkans, Italy were open for assault. Today any new blow must come from the west. It has become an axiom of modern warfare that any large scale invasion, requiring days and weeks of steady fighting, must have the support of land-based fighter craft. Thus the possible points of any major thrust are limited to the fighter range of Allied aircraft based in Britain.

Now Within Range
A few months ago this was little more than 100 miles. Then came the Salerno landing, supported by fighters based 250 miles away. Within the past two weeks, American P-51s and P-38s have flown and fought over Berlin 600 miles from England.

This new fighter range places all of the western coastline of Europe from Denmark to Spain within invasion range.

But behind the European west wall built by the Germans is a vast efficient network of railroads and highways. As proven in Italy no amount of bombing can wholly block these arteries.

Then too the Germans can eliminate large sections as unsuitable for possible landings because of cliffs, unfavorable tides or bad beaches. By placing mobile armies at key points the Nazis can plug almost any point in this west wall quickly.

What the Allies can achieve is a tactical surprise.

The Germans will not know at where or when the heaviest blow will come. They will have to wait until the main effort develops and then it may be too late.

The Germans are certain to be able to move men faster by land than the Allies can by sea. In the initial stages they will enjoy a superiority in land forces. The Allies, however, will have sea and air superiority.

Granting that there cannot be any degree of strategic surprise the success or failure of the invasion then will depend on men and material.

The Bastille of Paris was completed in 1383.

Military Attache

Maj. Florence Jepson of Atlanta, Ga., is now in London ready to assume the post of assistant military attache, according to the War department. She is the first member of the Women's Army Corps to hold such an assignment and is the widow of Lieut. James Jepson who was lost on a combat mission while flying with the Royal Air Force (International).

Shifting Tide Of Wartime Votes

BY HERMAN R. ALLEN
WASHINGTON—Two questions, among others, are causing the politicians particular worry these days:

1. How many soldiers will vote?
2. How many away-from-home war workers will vote?

These two questions are important because President Roosevelt has always drawn strong support from the younger population brackets, which make up the bulk of labor and the armed forces. If the President runs for another term, the votes of these two groups may tell the story.

Ballot Bettors Beware
The answers will not, of course, be known until after Election Day, and any attempt to forecast what part they will play in the returns is pretty much guess work. There are too many considerations. The biggest is: How many persons in these two groups will be able to vote? And that is precisely the one question nobody can answer.

However, here are some figures that the politicians are studying. They are for the five states with the largest electoral votes—100 in all, with 266 needed for a presidential election.

The 1940 potential voting population is based on the U. S. Census Bureau count of citizens over 21. The 1944 potential voting population is an estimate worked out by calculating the proportions of the 1940 total state population, OPA ration book registrations as of Jan. 1, 1944, and the 1940 potential voting population.

The 1940 vote is from official returns. The number of men in the armed services is estimated by taking 8 per cent of the 1940 population of each state. (About 8 per cent of the total U. S. population is in service.)

Manpower commission officials say there is no really accurate way to determine how many war workers have moved into or out of any state. Add to this the fact that voting requirements vary from state to state, and it can be seen how nearly impossible it is to make any kind of an estimate of how worker migration will affect the election.

Overseas Or At Sea
This leaves the soldier-vote question. Chances are that almost every serviceman is away from home. Approximately one-fourth of them are overseas or on the seas.

The rest undoubtedly are stationed far enough away to require an absentee ballot if not a federal ballot.

California has said it would accept the federal ballot. Ohio and Illinois have said they would not. Most of the other states are still doubtful.

If substantial numbers of soldiers do not vote, either because of lack of interest or because they can't the chances are that the election will reflect it. In last month's special election in the first congressional district of Colorado, the Republican candidate won with fewer votes than any defeated Republican candidate had polled in recent years. This was interpreted by some analysts as a direct result of a decreasing number of voters, most of the decrease being represented by soldiers and sailors. It might be repeated—or reversed—in various polls in the general election this fall.

Probe Dover Death
DOVER, April 22.—An autopsy will be requested in the death of Naomi Freed, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Freed of nearby Dennison, whose body was recovered from the Little Stillwater creek, Sheriff John McIntosh of Tuscarawas county reports.

The body was found yesterday near a bridge which the child would have to cross on her return from Uhrichsville, where she had gone Tuesday to see a motion picture, the sheriff said.

Between 1913 and 1943 the number of power-driven plows, rakes and harrows increased 112 per cent.

About Town

Boyd, district manager of the Office of Defense Transportation, today reminded operators of all types of commercial motor vehicles that they are still required to have their tires inspected periodically under ODT orders, although the Office of Price Administration has lifted the requirement for passenger car tire inspection, effective April 20.

BRITISH SUB

sub while six-inch shells boiled the water around the crash-diving submarine.

(Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia command announced the attack Thursday, saying the fleet suffered no damage, with only one plane lost, and its pilot saved.)

Military Installations Hit
Battleships and lighter units under command of Adm. Sir James Somerville, commander of Britain's eastern fleet, screened the carriers and their attacking convoys of Hellcats, Dauntless Avengers, Corsairs and Barracudas.

(The Hellcat, Avenger and Corsair all are American-made.)
Admiral Somerville, personally attending, called it a "great performance," and said the seamanship in handling the diverse Allied units was one with beautiful coordination.

Japanese reprisal raids all failed, with the Hellcat fighter screen driving them off by day and the Allied barrage stopping them at night.

Every military installation was hit on two airfields, one on little Sabang island, off the northwest tip of Sumatra, and another at Lhonga on Sumatra.

Two cargo ships of 4,000 to 5,000 tons each, three corvettes, three huge oil tanks, docks, warehouses, barracks, a radio station and power plant received the personal attention of the fliers, to say nothing of the Japanese commander's personal quarters, which were riddled by four early rising Hellcats.

From 40 miles away, the returning fliers saw flames and they kept the rising smoke in sight for 60 miles.

Nineteen enemy planes were destroyed on the ground around Sabang and three at Lhonga in addition to three shot down in the air.

"Immeasurably better than the burning of Sabang is that we have started to kick the Jap from behind and we have let 70,000,000 Netherlands natives know the white man is coming back with power to break the evil Jap's hold on their necks," declared an Allied naval observer.

Health Official Dies
COLUMBUS, April 22.—A. Elliott Kimberly, 67, sanitary engineer for the State Board of Health, died of a heart attack at his office in the State Office building yesterday.

The Red Cross hospital motion picture service in 1943 played to a total audience of more than 10,000,000.

GAY MOMENTS NEAR ITALIAN FRONT

ALTHOUGH this grass-tufted section of Italy doesn't present ideal dancing conditions, a good time is had by all as Sarah Lee Harris, USO troupe member, and a G.I. Joe (top) beat it out to a tune played by the orchestra of a mobile radio unit assigned to the Fifth Army. Bottom: weary warriors on the Anzio beachhead frolic on the sand trying to forget the mud and dirt of the front line. The "steeds" are (l. to r.) T/5 Horace Thomas, Danville, Ill., and Pvt. WASHINGTON, April 22.—The Office of Price Administration today increased the ceiling price of poultry at all sales levels by 1.8 cents a pound, effective immediately and continuing through the month of April.

The new revisions approved by stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, also provide a program of increases for May and June and for January through June of 1945.

OPA said the over-all changes would boost the price of poultry to the public an average of two-thirds of a cent a pound over the period of one year.

careous if not impossible. Furthermore, while we know the admirals has both sea and air strength, we don't know that he has the landing equipment necessary for big scale invasion.

In any event, even if he is capable of undertaking amphibious tasks, one wouldn't expect him to do more than try to oust the Japanese from the small Nicobar and Andaman islands. They lie across the path between his base on Ceylon and both Burma and the Malay peninsula, and must be occupied before any invasion of the mainland behind them is attempted.

The surprise raid on Sumatra, which undoubtedly has come as a bad shock to them, will compel them to maintain strong naval and defense in that zone, and this at a time when they are up to their necks in trouble with the MacArthur-Nimitz commands in the Central and Southwest Pacific.
